DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 4, 5, 35, 37 – 39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nishi (US 6,590,636) in view of Hazelton et al. (US 6,437,463) and Osuga (US 2005/0005702).

Nishi has an exposure apparatus in which plural substrates (W_1 , W_2) on a base 12.

One substrate is exposed while the other is aligned or measured. The substrate on the measuring or aligning fine stage would be placed on the exposure fine stage after completion of the parallel operations, then a new substrate would be loaded on the measuring/aligning fine stage. Nishi does not disclose using chucks to transport the substrates and place the chucks on the fine stage. Hazelton et al. disclose in column 16, lines 15-17, that plural fine stages may be on a single coarse stage. Osuga discloses a transport tool (11) for transporting an object (substrate) to be tested or to be processed. The transport tool (11) holds the substrate and both are transported by a arm or robot (4) to an from different processes, load or wait zones, or test units. The transport tool (11) would correspond to a chuck since the substrate is held thereon by a vacuum. One of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made would be motivated to use the transport tool of the Osuga reference with the apparatus of the Nishi for the same reason and advantages taught by Osuga, at least for more accurate positioning of the substrate.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 2, 6 – 34 and 36 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
